Outcomes of the Library Orientation Program for First-Year B.Tech Students

- The orientation program witnessed the participation of all first-year B.Tech students in scheduled batches across one week.
- Students gained hands-on experience in accessing both print and electronic resources.
- After the sessions, students demonstrated confidence in using OPAC and online databases for academic requirements.
- Increased awareness was observed regarding the availability of subject-specific e-journals and digital learning resources.
- Students understood the importance of ethical use of information and the need to follow proper referencing practices.
- Many students expressed interest in regularly using the library for assignments, projects, and personal study.
- The program successfully laid a foundation for developing independent learning and research skills among freshmen.
- Overall, the orientation program was effective in familiarizing students with library services and is expected to lead to increased utilization of resources throughout the academic year.
